Hubert Wurth

About his work, Hubert Wurth says “My way of portraying space is through abstract painting. The surface challenges and guides me, the two dimensions enforce strictness. Freed from the direct bondage of representation, abstraction is nevertheless a reflection of the life we have.”

Hubert Wurth (Luxembourg 1952) has been drawing and painting from an early age. He learned to paint from his father, who, in addition to his work as a judge, was an amateur painter.

After law studies, Hubert worked as a diplomat. With posts in, among others, Moscow, The Hague, London, New York and Vienna. In addition to his work as ambassador for Luxembourg, he has also always continued to draw and paint and has had various (inter)national exhibitions, including in The Hague! Now he is back as a painter with a special exhibition at the Hofvijver at Bos Fine Art The Hague.

About his work

As a child he already loved to abstract with straight lines and rectangular lines. This can also be seen in his works 60 years later. Sharp, full of sharp corners and lines, sometimes as thin as the blade of a knife.

In his Moscow time as Ambassador of Luxembourg, he got to know the Russian constructivists. This greatly influenced his work. Then in the Netherlands he was inspired by the work of Jan Dibbets.

His recent paintings are made with a combination of oil on canvas and collages of newspaper and magazine photos. Newspapers were increasingly printed in full color in the 1990s and as a diplomat he was a 'big user' to keep himself informed of all the news in the world. The photos are used as pigments for the works.

The paintings are always abstract. There is no relationship with reality and do not look for a message. The works have no title and titles are not suitable and not applicable in the eyes of Hubert Wurth, you cannot describe abstract art in words. Wurth held many expositions, like for instance in Luxembourg, Moscow, Helsinki, The Hague, Amsterdam, New York, Paris, Vienna Bratislavia, Salzburg, etc.
